DHCD Kicks Off the “DHCD Ward-by-Ward Check-In” Community Meeting Series

WASHINGTON, DC – The D.C. Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) kicked off a three-month community meeting series, “DHCD Ward-by-Ward Check-In” at THEARC on Mississippi Avenue in Ward 8. These meetings are designed to seek feedback and suggestions from community members to help shape the future of affordable housing throughout the District. Additionally, the agency seeks to inform residents, business owners, and other community members of the agency’s programs and services, current and future projects, and the Fiscal Year (FY) 2016 affordable housing budget.

“These forums continue our commitment to ensuring that residents and community leaders have a seat at table in shaping the future of Washington, DC,” said Mayor Bowser. “Ward by Ward, we will engage residents, address their affordable housing needs and invest in the resources that will help build more pathways to the middle class.”

These meetings will provide a platform for communities to voice their concerns, ask questions and provide input on what the housing and community development needs are in their neighborhoods. Additionally, agency leaders will be on hand at the meetings to discuss the Housing Production Trust Fund (HPTF) and other resources available to developers and community members to ensure affordable housing.

Mayor Bowser recently discussed during her State of the District Address that the HPTF will be funded at $100 million during FY 2016 and beyond—delivering on an important campaign promise that has received unanimous support from the DC Council. The fund is critical to the District’s plans to end chronic homelessness and support affordable housing in the city.

“It is DHCD’s goal to continue to build strong relationships with our partnerships to better understand the housing and resource needs of our communities,” said DHCD Director Polly Donaldson, who was confirmed by the DC Council and officially appointed by Mayor Bowser last month. “At the end of the series we hope to have a clearer understanding of the various housing and community development needs ward-by-ward and neighborhood-by-neighborhood. This information will help the agency effectively plan the best approaches for creating opportunities, preserving valuable resources, and building enduring communities throughout the District.”

Agency leaders met first with Advisory Neighborhood Commissioners a few weeks ago to announce the community meeting series and learn about top priorities for their respective neighborhoods. The series began in Ward 8 and will conclude in late June in Ward 1. Below is a full listing of meetings.
